Dear Sir/Madam,

Company Tax Returns filed by paper – company tax reference 2411414574

I am writing on behalf of Atoure Ltd to enclose three completed Company Tax Returns (form CT600), with accounts and computations attached to each, for the following accounting periods:

- 11 September 2023 to 10 September 2024
- 11 September 2024 to 30 September 2024
- 1 October 2024 to 30 September 2025

I am aware that HMRC's free online Company Tax Return service closed on 31 March 2026, and that commercial filing software is now the normal route for delivering a return electronically. I am filing these three returns on paper because I have not yet been able to secure commercial filing software: I am the sole director of Atoure Ltd, I applied for a free business account that provides access to compatible software (Mettle, which provides free FreeAgent access) shortly before this letter, and that application remains under review at the time of writing. Given the filing deadline for the most recent of these three periods falls on 30 September 2026, I have chosen to file on paper now, using figures I have prepared and verified directly against the company's bank records, rather than risk a further missed deadline while that software access is pending.

This also follows on from my letter of 17 September 2026 appealing the late filing penalties already charged for the first two periods above, in which I explained that I was hospitalised as an emergency admission from 7 to 25 September 2024 with diabetic ketoacidosis and a new diagnosis of diabetes mellitus, and was unable to attend to the company's administrative affairs, including its filing obligations, during that admission and for a period of recovery afterwards. As the company's sole director, with no other officer, employee, or agent able to act on its behalf, this also delayed putting the company's filing arrangements – including its software access – on a proper footing, which is part of why paper filing is still necessary for these returns now.

The figures in each return are drawn directly from the company's bank statements (Santander, Revolut Business, and Revolut Personal) and supersede the amounts HMRC assumed in the determinations issued on 2 September 2026 for the first two periods, which I understand were raised in the absence of a return and used the main rate of Corporation Tax rather than the small profits rate that actually applies. The Corporation Tax self-assessed as payable in each return is:

- 11 September 2023 to 10 September 2024: £474.65
- 11 September 2024 to 30 September 2024: £7.86
- 1 October 2024 to 30 September 2025: £553.14

I will arrange payment of these amounts, together with interest for late payment where applicable, separately from this letter. I would be grateful if these returns could be processed as soon as possible so that the determinations already issued can be superseded and any associated collection action can be updated accordingly.

Please let me know if any further information is required.

Yours faithfully,
